If you see this icon, it means the information is about living and studying in Toronto. If you’re beginning your term from your home country, this info may not apply to you now, but it will be important once you come to Toronto.
The essentials

◆ Get a study permit
We strongly recommend that you apply for your study permit online as soon as you receive your letter of acceptance. Our immigration advising team is available by appointment to help guide you through this process. You can also attend a webinar to learn how to apply.

You can begin your program through online courses outside Canada, even if your study permit, temporary resident visa (TRV) or electronic travel authorization (eTA) have not yet been processed. You should still apply for these documents as early as you can.

◆ Understand your health insurance
Degree-seeking international students at the University of Toronto are automatically enrolled in two health-care plans:

1. The University Health Insurance Plan (UHIP), a mandatory basic health-care plan that can help cover the costs of medical services at clinics and hospitals. Everything you need to know about UHIP can be found at uhip.ca. Our UHIP Office has additional information specific to U of T students.
   You’ll be enrolled in UHIP automatically and the coverage charge will be listed on ACORN.

   After you arrive in Canada, follow these instructions to print your UHIP card. You’ll need it each time you use a health-care service.

2. A supplementary health-care plan provided through one of U of T’s student unions, which can help with additional medical costs (e.g. prescription medication, dental, vision and more) not covered by UHIP. You can find more information at studentcare.ca.

◆ Ensure your immunizations are up to date
The Public Health Agency of Canada recommends that you’re vaccinated for specific illnesses as a visitor to Canada. Find out more about these recommended vaccinations.

If you can’t get immunized before arriving in Canada, please visit Health & Wellness when you arrive to discuss vaccination.
Learn about course selection
You’ll be assigned a start time for course selection depending on your faculty and year of study. Your start time for enrolment will be posted on your ACORN account in early July. If you have questions about the course selection process, contact your registrar’s office.

Pay tuition online
Your final tuition amount will be posted on your ACORN account, so follow the instructions on your ACORN account for payment. Refer to this guide if you need help using ACORN.
The Student Accounts website has an annual schedule of due dates and instructions on how to pay tuition fees in Canadian funds from outside Canada. You’ll find details about how you can pay by setting up a Canadian bank account prior to arrival in Canada, through Western Union GlobalPay or by bank draft or money order.
If you’re required to show proof of tuition payment/deposit as part of your study permit application process, you can e-mail the Student Accounts Office at info.studentaccount@utoronto.ca to request an estimate of the fees payable.

Get your UTORid online
A UTORid is an eight-character, alphanumeric identification that allows you to access various U of T online programs and services. Along with your 10-digit student number, it’s printed on your TCard, which is your U of T student ID. You won’t be able to get your TCard until you’re physically on campus, but you can obtain a UTORid, email address and virtual TCard by appointment. Visit the TCard website for more information.

Learn about online learning tools
Throughout your studies at U of T, wherever you’re studying, you’ll be using various online tools. Your instructors will provide guidance on how these tools will be used in each of your courses. These tools include:
- Getting Ready for Online: Tips and strategies for successful online learning
- Quercus: U of T’s main online learning environment, which has its own student guide
- BlackBoard Collaborate Ultra: A videoconferencing tool that allows you to share files and interact with your instructors and peers

Learn about academic supports
You may find the academic culture at U of T to be different from your previous experiences in terms of teaching styles, learning styles and expectations. U of T’s academic culture encourages independence and self-exploration, where asking questions is encouraged and expected in many contexts. Students are responsible for finding the information they need and for advocating for themselves. Below are some key resources to help you get started:
- Registrar’s office: Your main source of academic and financial advising
- Important dates: Know the deadlines specific to your faculty or academic unit
- Academic Success and learning strategists: Reach your highest learning potential
- Writing centres: Get help with your writing from a trained writing instructor
- Graduate Centre for Academic Communication: Advance training in academic writing and speaking for graduate students
- Academic integrity: Resources to help you act with honesty and responsibility in all academic matters
Living in Toronto:

◆ Explore your housing options in Toronto

There are a number of housing options for you to consider. These include living in residence as a first-year undergraduate, graduate or student with a family, and finding off-campus housing or temporary short-term accommodations.

The University of Toronto’s Housing Services can help you explore all your options with an amazing housing resource library, housing databases and housing advice and support.

◆ Plan your finances

Wondering about additional financial supports? We have some options for you explore below:

- Awards Explorer: Explore diverse U of T funding opportunities
- U of T’s financial calculator: Budget your finances through the academic year
- Graduate students: Information on financing your graduate education
- Working in Canada: How to work in Canada as an international student
- Money and finances in Canada: Government of Canada guidelines on managing finances

We recommend that students open a bank account in Canada, and it’s a good idea to research a number of banks to compare products and services. Having a Canadian bank account will make it easier to process payments and transition to living on campus when possible.

- List of major Canadian banks: A guide for the Canadian banking system
- How to choose and open an account: Government of Canada information and account comparison

◆ Prepare for Toronto’s climate

Toronto’s climate ranges from near-tropical in the summer (up to 35° C), to very cold in the winter (sometimes as low as –20° C). You will need different kinds of clothing to stay comfortable all year round.

Top tips:

- Winter (Dec.-Feb.): learn to love winter and get answers to your winter questions
- Summer (June-Aug.): lightweight clothing (such as cotton) is good
- Spring (March-May) and fall (Sept.-Nov.): sweaters and a lightweight waterproof coat
- Canadian students tend to dress casually for most occasions
- Dressing for the weather is socially acceptable!

◆ Stay safe and get around in Toronto

Toronto is often ranked as one as the safest cities in North America. It’s good to familiarize yourself with safety services available:

Safety on campus and in Toronto:

- Campus Police (U of T)
- Community Safety Office (U of T)
- Sexual Violence Prevention & Support Centre (UofT)
- Public safety services
- Emergency services

There are also many ways to travel around the city:

- Toronto Transit Commission (TTC) – learn more about reduced student fares and Presto cards
- By bike, ride share services, or taxi
- Driving - learn how to get a new license or exchange your license
- GO Transit if you are headed outside the city of Toronto
Find support as a student with children

Be sure to connect with U of T’s Family Care Office for all the info and support you may need. You can also check out this online community for student parents.

Pack your bags

If you’ll be living in residence, check with Housing Services to learn about what you’ll need for your room. You can purchase big items near campus to avoid taking up space in your suitcase. For clothing, you’ll want items for a wide range of temperatures. If you don’t already own winter items, you may want to wait and buy them in Toronto.

Make sure to make copies of your important documents and carry the originals with you in your carry-on luggage:

- Passport
- Temporary Residence Visa (TRV) or Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA) (if required)
- Port of Entry (POE) Letter of Introduction from Immigration Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) – Don’t forget to show this to get your Study Permit at the airport!
- Letter of Acceptance from the University of Toronto
- Proof that you have enough money to support yourself during your stay in Canada
- Immunization record

Arrive at the airport and get to campus

Some ways to travel from Pearson International Airport to St. George campus:

- Union Pearson Express (train): Visit the UPX website to calculate your fare.
- TTC (public transit): Take bus #192 (Airport Rocket) to Kipling subway station, then take the subway eastbound to St. George Station. For more information on TTC fares, visit the TTC website.
- Taxi: The flat-rate fare is currently $50-$60, plus the fuel surcharge.

For further information about your transportation options, visit the following websites: TTC, Mississauga Transit, Go Transit or taxi tariffs.
Connecting with others:

◆ Connect with your peers

While we may not be able to gather in large groups due to COVID-19, there are still opportunities to connect with other students:

- e-Ambassadors: Connect with an e-ambassador over the summer to ask questions about life at U of T
- CIE virtual programs: Several exciting online activities for you to connect with your peers, exchange ideas and build community. Find more info on our website and our calendar on CLNx.
- Mentorship & Peer Programs: Opportunities to be mentored by a fellow student or staff
- Orientation calendar: Find out more about orientation events and activities. You may also want to check out what your faculty, college, department or student union/association has planned for orientation.
- Hart House, a home for experiential learning at U of T, also has several virtual events to engage in the arts, dialogue and community.

◆ Connect with us!
